Let's Start!

Let's meet up at the coffee shop!

Learning Outcome

Use expressions about relationships and feelings in a range of social and work contexts.

Ask your partner:

- How often do you meet up with friends and do something?
- Who do you especially like hanging out with? Why?
- What's the best thing to do with friends when you go out, in your opinion?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about social activities.
- I can express complex statements using words like who, that or which.
- I can exchange opinions.

Let's Explore!

Vanessa and Sally get each other!

* When someone "gets" you, they understand you and why you are the way you are.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Sally: Let me tell you, since I started working, I have no social life! I never go out.
Vanessa: Neither do I. I'm doing work that I love, but it's still demanding!
Sally: I'd like to just hang out with you and Peter at the coffee shop that we practically lived in at college.
Vanessa: If you ask me, the lives that we knew are gone forever. Most of the people who were in classes with me have moved away.
Sally: Peter included! He hardly ever stops by these days!
Vanessa: We're all people who want to get ahead. It's going to take over our lives for a bit.
Sally: I really think that having a good time is important too.
Vanessa: Definitely. We should set up a weekly lunch date.
Sally: I think that unwinding today has been so good for us.
Vanessa: I totally agree. We have got to get out more - head out to the movies or the mall!
Sally: It's obvious that laughing and talking are great tension relievers.
Vanessa: I couldn't agree more. Doing things with people who get you is so easy and fun!
Sally: So let's make it official. We'll meet up once a week and take it from there.
Vanessa: Yes.

Phrasal Verbs about Socializing

You can use phrasal verbs when you talk about socializing or when you are socializing. Phrasal verbs are informal verbs so they fit well into conversations about and in social situations.

When you add a particle (preposition) to a verb, it becomes a phrasal verb. The verb changes and has a different meaning.

Phrasal Verb Form:

verb + particle (preposition)

go + out = leave the house take + over = gain control of Phrasal verbs can be followed by phrases explaining 'what?' to give further explanation, but this is not always necessary.

For example:

We're just going to hang out. (no explanation needed)

Let's set up a weekly lunch. (more explanation needed)

Examples:

- I have no social life! I never go out.
- I'd like to just hang out with you and Peter at the coffee shop.
- He hardly ever stops by these days!
- We're all people who want to get ahead.
- That's going to take over our lives for a bit.
- We should set up a weekly lunch date.
- We have got to get out more - head out to the movies or the mall!
- We'll meet up once a week and take it from there.

Subject and Object Relative Clauses

When you want to clarify which person or thing you are talking about, you use a relative clause.

You can begin a relative clause with who for people, which for things or that for either people or things.

In spoken English you usually use that, rather than which or who.

You put the relative clause immediately after the noun it talks about.

A subject relative clause describes the subject of the clause.

Example:

The man who/that called wanted to speak to Tom.

Which man? The man who called.

The clause who called immediately follows man - the noun it describes.

An object relative clause describes the object of the clause.

Example:

The book which/that I lent you was my father's.

Which book? The book I lent you.

Example	Clause	Relative Connector	Type of Relative Clause
Most of the people who were in classes with me have moved away.	who were in classes with me	who	subject
We're all people who want to get ahead.	who want to get ahead	who	subject
I'm doing work that I love.	that I love	that	object
If you ask me, the lives that we knew are gone forever.	that we knew	that	object
