

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Pronunciation Spot: That was a great day!

Learning Outcome

Use expressions about relationships and feelings in a range of social and work contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about movies and social activities.
- I can use proper intonation and stress.
- I can identify key information in a short audio.

Ask your partner:

- What activities do you remember enjoying on your own or doing with a friend?
- What did you do on your last day off from school or work?

Let's Explore!

Japantown was captivating at 5 in the morning!

* When something is "captivating" it holds your interest because it's interesting, and exciting.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: What did you do for entertainment while you were away? See movies? Go to clubs?
- Sally: Well, movies in another language didn't interest me. When I checked into a hotel, I would pick up a map and talk over my ideas with the concierge who was more than happy to help. In my opinion, that's the best way to find out what's worth doing. The concierge never let me down.
- Vanessa: I couldn't agree more. It's the locals who always know where to send you. Aunt Nelly pointed out a lot places I would have missed!
- Sally: The way I look at it, you may not come across those extra special places that are worth the effort to get to on your own.
- Vanessa: Exactly. It would never have dawned on me to go to Japantown at 5 a.m., but it was captivating!
- Sally: Finding museums that were off the beaten track was fun too.
- Vanessa: I'd say that checking out a place or activity that most tourists don't know about is the best part of sightseeing.
- Sally: Absolutely. Boy, this brings back memories!

Let's Practice!

Let's practice making long sentences by chunking* parts of them together.

*"chunking": Another word for chunking is breaking up.

Instructions: Organize the mystery sentence.

1. the / my / happy / talk / more / When / tan / a / pick / I / over / and / hotel, / checked /. / a / with / would / help / to / concierge / ideas / into / I / who / up / map / was
2. way / the /what's / to /worth /best / out / doing / that's / opinion, / In /. / my / find
3. to / have / was / It / dawned / 5 / Japantown / to / ! / captivating / at / never / on / go / a.m., / but / it / would / me

Let's Practice!

What does Sally do when she's on vacation?

Instructions: Choose the words from the Word Bank to correctly complete the sentence. Use capitals where necessary.

Word Bank

movies in another language / let me down / pointed out a lot / pick up a map / talk over my ideas

1. Well, _____ didn't interest me.
2. I would _____ at a hotel.
3. Then I would _____ with the concierge.
4. The concierge never _____.
5. Aunt Nelly _____ of places I would have missed!

Extension Activity

Talk about how you prepare for sightseeing in a new place.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Explain how you decide where to go when you visit a new place.
- Explain whether you ask locals, ask at the hotel, or read up on Internet.
- Talk about a tourist attraction or sight or restaurant you have been to that someone recommended.
- Recommend a place in your city for someone to go to.
- Think about stress and intonation when you speak.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I talk about finding out where to go in a new city.

☐ ☐

I explain where I find my information about new cities.

☐ ☐

I recommend a place to go in my city.

☐ ☐

I use stress and intonation in sentences when I speak.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- to check into (verb): to get a room
e.g. We checked into the hotel quite late.
- to talk over (verb): to discuss e.g. I would pick up a map and talk over my ideas with the concierge.
- to let down (verb): to disappoint
e.g. The concierge never let me down.
- to point out (noun): to show; to indicate e.g. Aunt Nelly pointed out a lot places I would have missed!
- worth the effort (expression): the time spent equals the work you put into it e.g. Getting up early to go to Japantown was worth the effort.
- to dawn on (verb): to realize e.g. It would never have dawned on me to go to Japantown at 5 a.m.!
- off the beaten track (expression): not where most people go e.g. I love finding small museums off the beaten track.
- to check out (verb): to see; to visit e.g. Checking out a place or activity that most tourists don't know about, is the best part of sightseeing.
- to bring back (verb): to make you remember
e.g. Boy, this brings back memories!

Learning Points

The Pronunciation of Phrasal Verbs

Where do you put the stress in a phrasal verb?

If the phrasal verb needs an object, or is not separable, then you stress the verb.

Example:

cheat on

He cheated on his exam. ("He cheated on" is not finished without the object exam.)

She passed out because it was too hot.

If the phrasal verb is separable, then the stress is on the particle (preposition).

Example:

talk over

I would pick up a map and talk over my ideas with the concierge.

I would pick up a map and talk my ideas over with the concierge.

Examples:

- It would never have dawned on me to go to Japantown at 5 a.m.
- You may not come across those extra special places on your own.
- Aunt Nelly pointed out a lot places I would have missed!
- Checking out a place or activity that most tourists don't know about, is the best part of sightseeing.

Learning Points

Breaking Sentences into Parts

When you say a long sentence in English, you break it into distinct parts, each with its own intonation. You use the rise and fall of your voice to show the listener when you are or are not finished.

You break long sentences into parts, called clauses. Each clause has its own subject and verb (and sometimes object).

You also pause or break when you see a comma. A comma can separate a word or phrase from the rest of the sentence, or show where a clause ends.

For example:

When I checked into a hotel, // I would pick up a map and talk over my ideas with the concierge// who was more than happy to help.

At the end of each clause, you use rising intonation to show the listener that the sentence is not finished.

When you give opinions, the lead in to the opinion or reply is separated with a comma.

For example:

In my opinion, that's the best way to find out what's worth doing.

Say these sentences. The bolded words should have rising intonation.

I'd say that checking out a place or activity that most tourists don't know about, is the best part of sightseeing.

The way I look at it, you may not come across those extra special places that are worth the effort to get to on your own.

